This course aims to introduce the field of medicine as both a scientific field and profession. Taught by experienced industry professionals, lessons will incorporate both theoretical and practical knowledge within the field of medicine. The areas of medicine and medical biology to be studied will be chosen from optional subjects and course content will be delivered from areas that can include anatomy and human dissection, DNA research, ethical issues, and more.

Learning outcomes

- Develop skills and knowledge relating to the anatomy and function of the cardiovascular, respiratory, digestive, urinary and nervous systems
- Develop treatment plans for a range of acute and complex medical disorders
- Engaging in immersive case studies and simulations that challenge students to think critically and apply multidisciplinary approaches to patient outcomes
- Consider the ethical complexities of clinical practice that is essential for effective patient care and collaboration in a healthcare team

Example Industry Workshops

E-Simulation Suite Day - Students will be immersed into an e-simulation suite, focusing on A-E assessments (Airway, Breathing, Circulation, Disability, Exposure). This hands-on experience will take place in a state-of-the-art simulation centre in London or Oxford. Students will interact with Sim Man, a patient simulator, to practice and refine their skills in managing acute medical emergencies. They will learn how healthcare professionals perform rapid assessments, initiate appropriate interventions, and work effectively in a team under simulated clinical conditions. This immersive session aims to enhance clinical decision-making and preparedness for real-life emergencies in a controlled environment.

Surgical Skills Workshop Day - Students will take part in a surgical workshop, focusing on suturing techniques and the basics of surgery. The workshop will cover the basics of surgery, including aseptic technique, basic surgical procedures, and postoperative care, as well as different types of surgical skills such as tissue handling, knot tying, and instrument handling.

Capstone Industry Project

The project is developed and delivered by medical education company, Meducators UK. Students will step into the role of healthcare innovators tasked with developing a new pharmaceutical product to address a specific medical need. Working in teams, they will collaborate with pharmacists and other healthcare professionals to simulate the drug development process. Through interactive activities and workshops, students will explore the concepts of clinical commissioning, cost effectiveness, and patient-centric outcomes in a fun and educational setting.

This course aims to introduce the field of graphic design as both an artistic discipline and a professional practice. Taught by experienced industry professionals, lessons will incorporate both theoretical and practical knowledge within the field of graphic design. The areas to be studied will be chosen from optional subjects, and course content will cover topics such as typography, branding, digital illustration, and more.

Learning outcomes

- Develop skills and knowledge relating to the fundamental principles of design, including colour theory, composition, and visual communication.
- Analyse and apply key concepts in branding, typography, and digital media to real-world design projects.
- Engage in immersive case studies and design briefs that challenge students to think creatively and apply multidisciplinary approaches to visual problem-solving.
- Consider the ethical complexities of design practices, essential for responsible and culturally sensitive communication in the modern creative industry.

Example Industry Workshops

Visit to a Design Studio – Students will be immersed in the daily operations of a professional design studio. This hands-on experience will take place in a leading design firm in London. Students will gain insights into the creative process, client interaction, and the role of design in branding and marketing. The workshop will include a Q&A session with junior designers, followed by a tour of the studio to observe live projects in various stages of development.

Digital Illustration Workshop – Digital Illustration Workshop: Students will participate in a workshop focusing on digital illustration techniques using industry-standard software. The workshop will cover the essentials of creating vector graphics, digital painting, and image manipulation. Students will have the opportunity to work on their own projects, receive feedback from industry experts, and learn how digital tools are used to create compelling visual content in the design industry.

Capstone Industry Project

The project is developed and delivered by design education experts. Students will step into the role of creative directors in a "design pitch" session, where they will critically evaluate branding concepts and visual identities presented by industry professionals. Drawing on their knowledge from the subject studies programme, students will analyse these designs from both aesthetic and strategic perspectives, using design terminology such as hierarchy, balance, and user experience. Armed with "client briefs," they will engage in constructive critique and negotiation, deciding which concepts to "approve" while applying their understanding of design principles and branding strategies in a realistic and interactive setting.
